

Lori Fullerton Dixon, MS, RD
Regional Nutrition Support Manager

(1/08)

Lori Dixon is the Regional Nutrition Support Manager for Critical Care Systems. Lori joined Critical Care Systems in 2006 and is responsible for regional program development related to total parenteral nutrition. She earned her Bachelor of Science degree in Accounting from the University of Dayton and her Master of Science degree in Human Nutrition from Arizona State University. Lori has worked in the home infusion industry for more than 5 years, serving in a number of different roles—sales and marketing, managed care contracting, clinical program development and nutrition support services. She is a registered dietitian and completed her thesis research studying the eating behaviors of children with cystic fibrosis.

Lori is responsible for the growth and development of Critical Care Systems' specialty nutrition support program. She provides clinical as well as sales and marketing field support and is available to provide nutrition support (TPN) educational presentations to payers, physicians, hospitals as well as internal staff. She serves as a liaison for key nutrition support customers, clinically monitors home TPN patients, develops nutrition support policies and procedures, assists with training for new dietitians and serves as a nutrition support (TPN) resource for all Critical Care Systems branches in the West.
